Young Girl Dragged to Death.

Odesa, Russia, May 7.—A tale comes from Izholsko once more which illustrates the superstition of the Russian peasants. Izholsko is a village in the province of Poltava, Little Russia.

There dwelt a girl Petrokavia by name, whose extraordinary beauty was almost supernatural, so her neighbors decided she must be a witch. They more easily reached this satisfactory conclusion because all the other women in the village were jealous of Akstina and because she was affected with a form of catalepsy which often caused her to fall into a trance. Awakening from a trance recently, the girl mysteriously declared that her soul had been in Port Arthur and that she had been horrified by the suffering of the Russian soldiers there.

Naming several reservists from the province, Akstina vowed they were dying from cold, hunger and neglect. The soldiers' relatives, indeed all the villagers, became greatly excited and sent to St. Petersburg to learn how closely the girl's visions portrayed the truth. The war office informed them necessarily, that the czar himself was no happier than the troops at Port Arthur. Thereupon the people of Poltava decided that the unfortunate Akstina was verily a witch.

They took her from home, stripped off her garments and bound her to a horse's tail. Lashing the brute to fury, it dragged the poor girl over rough roads, under its pommeling hoofs until death released her.

When the Sap Rises

Weak lungs should be careful. Coughs and colds are dangerous then. One Minute Cough Cure cures coughs and colds and gives strength to the lungs. Mrs. G. E. Fenner of Marion, Ind., says: "I suffered with cough until I run down to weight from 138 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by all druggists.
